

VP Programs: Meg Meccariello

I began my relationship with INACSL in 2001 when I was appointed to the founding Board; I became the membership chair in 2002 and served until 2004. In 2005, I was elected to Associate Degree Representative. Currently (2007) I have been elected to the position of Vice President of Programs.

I am pleased to have participated in the development of the membership levels, INACSL awards and INACSL's research grants. I have been on the several conference planning committees.

I currently work at St Joseph's College of Nursing in Syracuse NY as the Clinical Learning Lab Coordinator. I have worked at the College for twenty three years. I am a consultant in the area of skills lab education for several colleges, specializing in low cost/ low tech simulation solutions. I work with companies on product development in the areas of simulation and healthcare. I have received the St Joseph's College of Nursing Alumni Award and the INACSL Excellence Award.

I have a supportive husband and two children. I spent five years on the Cato-Meridian Board of Education, holding the positions of vice-president and president.
